A Fine Dining Experience
What if you were sent back and forth between multiple restaurants for each item you ordered?
Then why send our users back and forth?!?
Real-Estate software industry has done an excellent job on building tools to manage, integrate and visualize the data.

User expectations, however, are changing.
Demand To Access More

• Users are demanding access to more types of data than ever before

• Business users are seeking custom solutions to fit their needs
RESO has already provided standards for defining and distributing data
Modular Designs

Bring the power of modular development to the real-estate software industry

Where to Start?
Build or adopt an open source framework to support modular development
Define standards for module development
